GILSONITE

Business Description

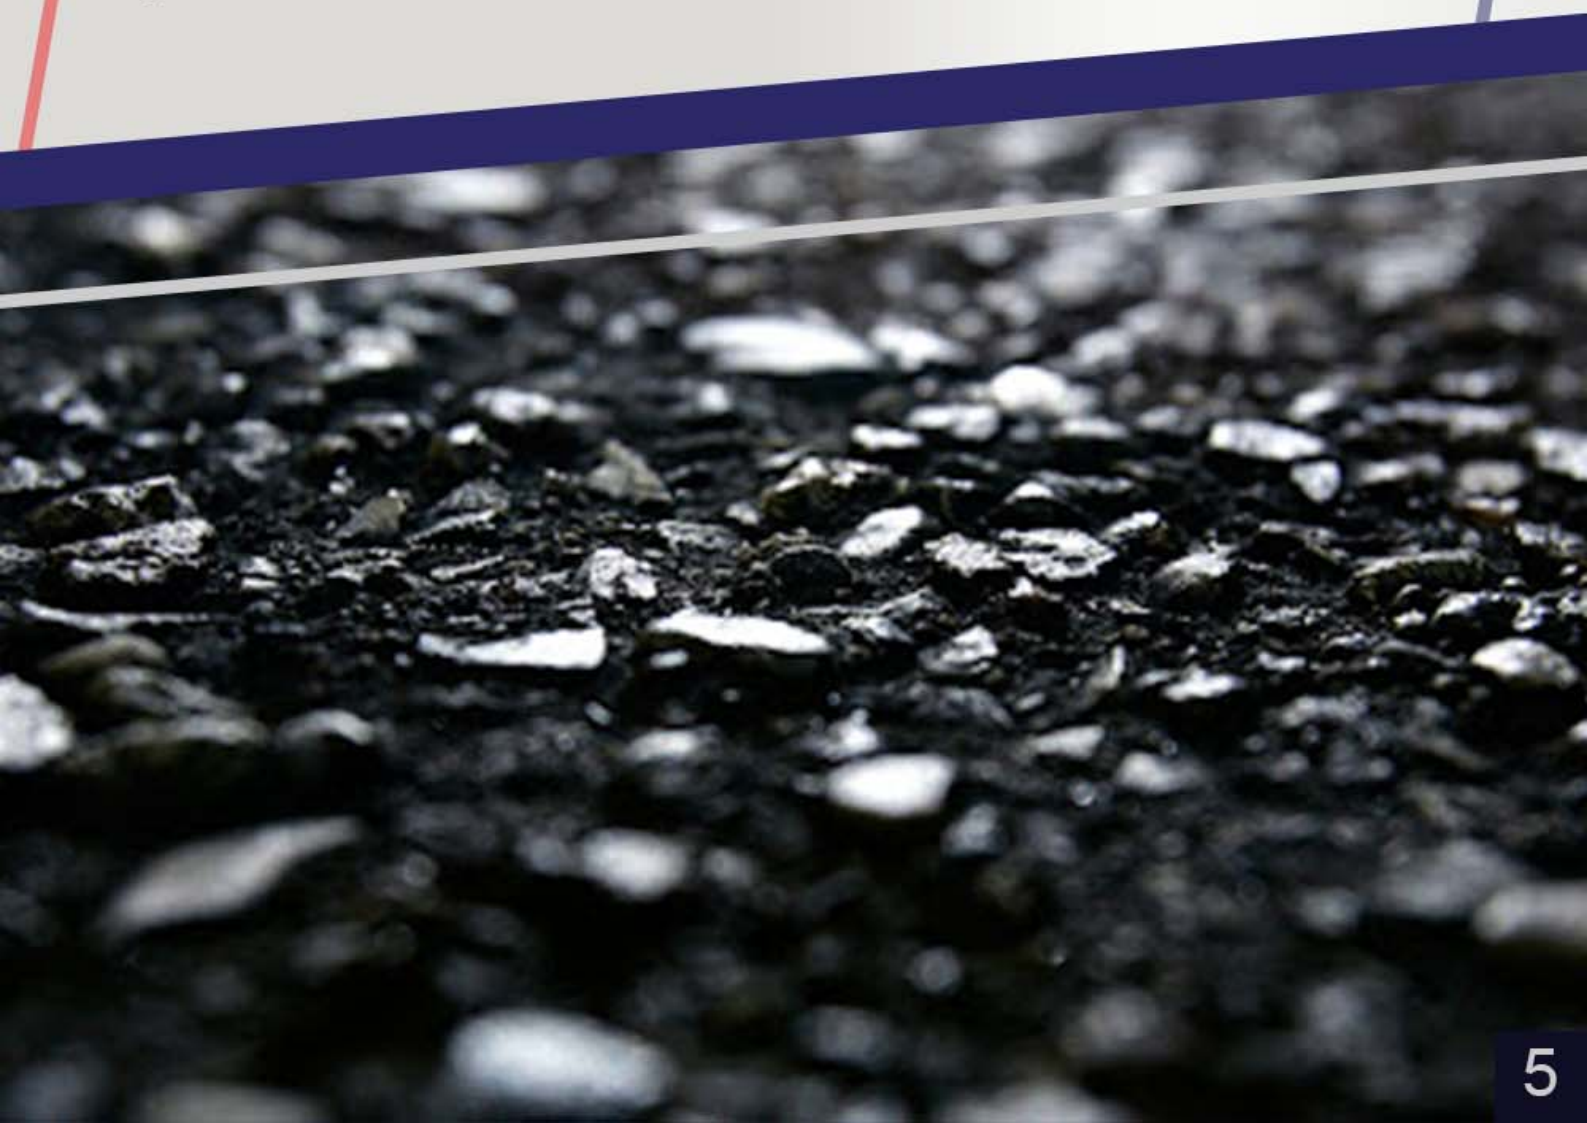

Gilsonite is a mineral introduced as waterproof coating for wooden pillars as well as insulation for wire and cables. Today, however, a lot of applications have been recognized for gilsonite. Gilsonite is a brittle substance; it looks like a black and shiny obsidian, and can easily be turned into a dark brown powder.

Gilsonite is extracted from the vertical layers of underground mines; the surface is seen as a thin layer, however, the deeper it gets, the more we dig. Due to the current tensions in the mining industry, today, gilsonite is still mined like 50 or 100 years ago. The only difference with modern mining industry is the use of air conditioning and mechanical elevators.

Gilsonite is recognized in the global market by the code HS27149000. Customers must consider some points before buying gilsonite. First, the customer must know what the use of this product is. Consequently, he will buy the needed tonnage and standard. The significance of purity also varies for different customers, and it is usually determined by the use of gilsonite.

Therefore, it is necessary research about it and consult with experts in this field. Rash Trading Company analyzes all the samples of gilsonite in its equipped laboratories. This company is fully prepared to provide SGS international qualitative and quantitative certificates if requested by customers.
